

BYU rally calls for patience in gulf

RUSSELL A. FOX
Universe Staff Writer

With most of them sitting cross-legged on the floor, more than 400 students attended a peace rally Monday, listening to arguments about the use of force in Iraq. The rallying message delivered by faculty and students was "Wait before we go to war."

Sam Sumnall, one of the event's organizers, said seven or eight graduates got together to plan the rally shortly after the passage of the United Nations resolution justifying the use of force in Iraq.

"We wanted to make it a very '90s thing," not like Berkeley or Kent State, said Sumnall, a 26-year-old graduate student from Raymond, Alberta, Canada.

The rally opened with the music of Simple Minds and Billy Bragg playing in the background. Immediately arguments arose while the students quickly filled to capacity.

Faculty speakers applauded the students present for showing interest in the crisis, but not all shared identical views on the crisis.

"I cannot say that I am absolutely opposed to war," said Eric Hyer, a professor of political science. He added, however, that while one may oppose the circumstances under which a war begins, "No one can deny the time and circumstance under which one may end a war."

Andrea Harris of the English Department said she doesn't believe in the idea that the war will be won in a few weeks and condemned a violent action to the crisis.

Hyer's statements were upheld by Peter P. Woodworth, who asked, "How do we have to get down on Saddam's level?"

Woodworth, a professor of organizational behavior, reminisced on his experiences as a Vietnam War protester while he was in graduate school and urged students to make themselves heard. Quoting Thomas Paine, he charged students to remember "an army of principles will succeed where an army of soldiers will not."

While many of the students at the rally admitted to being merely curious, others appeared to be deeply concerned about the threat of war. Students expressed themselves in classic protest fashion, carrying placards, some which read, "Heck no, we won't go... we won't die for Texas!" Others didn't seem so sure of their feelings. "I'm very divided on the subject," said Andrew Hall, 22, a history major from Whittier, Calif. "But I think the Bush administration can wait for sanctions to work."

Other faculty speakers included Eugene England of the English Department, David Dominguez from the law school and Robert Ford from the Geography Department.

Saddam now living on 'borrowed time'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House said Monday that Iraq will be living on "borrowed time" after Tuesday's deadline for withdrawal from Kuwait. The administration urged Saddam Hussein to take "dramatic action" to avert war.

"Everyone has to assume that military action could occur at any point" after Tuesday, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said.

Defense Secretary Richard Cheney told lawmakers at the White House that the number of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf now totals 410,000. Pentagon sources said U.S. troops were pouring into Saudi Arabia at the rate of 5,000 a day and that 450,000 would be on station by the end of the deployment.

There was no sign that Iraq would pull back. United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who met in Baghdad with Saddam Hussein, said, "I don't see any reason to have real hope."

"It's time to rally behind the forces in the field," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who had opposed the congressional resolution endorsing the use of force. He said the time for debate was over, but warned there could be bad news from the battlefield if war breaks out.

As the U.N.-set deadline neared, Bush summoned congressional leaders to the White House.

"If conflict occurs, there will be full support for the men and women of our armed forces," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, who also had opposed the congressional resolution. "Conflict is not inevitable, and we hope it does not occur."

Fitzwater said, "We all share a sense of deep concern and somber anxiety about reaching this 15th deadline."

However, he said, "the basic consultations and decision-making that needs to be done preparatory to the use of force has essentially been done."

Speaking of Bush, Fitzwater said, "If the time comes, he is ready. I think the president has made up his mind. He is prepared to use force if that is called for and if that is his final decision."

Dozens of anti-war protesters marched in front of the White House. Police lined the tall, wrought-iron fence and other officers were stationed on the lawn.

"Any moment after the 15th is borrowed time," Fitzwater said.

"Every day that passes is a day for Saddam Hussein to choose peace over war. Time always exists for him to take dramatic action that would avert this situation," Fitzwater said. "There's never a deadline for peace initiatives."

Human placenta used in cosmetics

Human tissue under extremely high temperatures, and no blood or blood by-products are used, thus preventing the possibility of AIDS contamination, according to the letter from Nu Skin.

"All of our ingredients have passed the requirements of the Federal Drug Administration," Chaffetz said.

Virlie Walker, public affairs assistant with the Food and Drug Administration in Denver, said the FDA does not require prior approval of cosmetic products. Registration with the FDA is on a voluntary basis, and Nu Skin is not registered with the FDA, she said.

"In the absence of banned ingredients, you can assume all others are permissible," Walker said, adding it was a "back door way" of getting approval.

Placenta is a permissible ingredient, but it is usually derived from animal sources. It is very expensive to use material from human sources, she said.

Although the human placental protein may be expensive, Nu Skin sees it as a preferable ingredient.

Mark Taylor, a Salt Lake dermatologist who does cosmetic dermatology, said the benefits of using placental material have never been proven, and

Gorbachev defends attack on Lithuania

Associated Press

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Monday defended the bloody military assault on Lithuania and said he learned about it only after a local military commander executed it.

Soviet troops seized another key broadcasting facility in Vilnius. Lithuanian officials said the action violated an agreement to reduce tensions in the republic following Sunday's attack that killed 14 people and injured 230. Troops control eight buildings in and around the capital.

Vilnius was calm but somber. Thousands of mourners lined up in the snow outside a sports arena to file past the open caskets of 10 victims as weeping parents stroked the bruised faces of the dead beneath a huge Lithuanian flag.

Gorbachev's statement that he was not in on the decision to use force called into question how strongly he controls the Soviet military.

President Lee talks about today's Devotional speech focusing on the U.S. Constitution.

Pres. Lee to address Constitution's role

By MARK L. REED
Editor

Today's Devotional assembly by BYU President Rex E. Lee will be on a topic he has been waiting to address his entire professional career.

In an interview with The Daily Universe Monday, President Lee expressed his desire to speak to students and faculty about the Constitution and how it affects our lives. "BYU has never asked me (to speak on the Constitution) before, and now I can decide what I want to speak on," said President Lee, former assistant U.S. attorney general.

The speech President Lee has prepared can be given any time, "but I want to give it today," he said.

The speech is the last one President Lee will give during the 15-year period designated by Congress as the Bicentennial period. President Lee said the Devotional was scheduled before Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait, but the U.N. deadline helps make his remarks even more applicable.

President Lee's speech will have elements of a forum and a devotional, but he wanted to give it in a devotional setting. Not only will he give an overview of the history of the Constitution, but he will also try to overcome the misunderstanding many people have about what it really means and what it really does.

"I also want to talk about three respects in which the Constitution has unique interest to members of the LDS Church," President Lee said.

"Its principal significance is this... it affects virtually every aspect of our lives, from the potential for war in the Persian Gulf... to truck lengths on interstate highways."

The recent Congress debate about the power to declare war had a constitutional issue at its core, President Lee said.

There is a general misunderstanding about what the Constitution contains, he said. "The pursuit of happiness is not a constitutional guarantee."

Some people think that the phrases "freedom from want" and "freedom from fear" appear in the Constitution, but they do not, President Lee said.

President Lee said he wants to help give BYU students and faculty an appreciation for the Constitution and help them see why it is so important.

"I also want to develop reasons why the Constitution has extra pluses or add-ons for those who are participating in the restoration of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints," he said.

First days of war would be crucial

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Ultimate victory over Saddam Hussein's troops in a Persian Gulf war would depend on how swiftly, and with what levels of devastation, U.S.-led forces can break down Iraqi resistance at the start, military experts say.

The first days, when massive U.S. air power would be sent against Iraq's missile sites and airfields, would be crucial, analysts say.

A war dragging on for months would mean mounting American casualties, worldwide economic hardship and a greater risk of Saddam's surviving to fight again.

The optimists say Iraq can be crushed in days. Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, returned from a gulf tour to proclaim, "If there is a war, it will be a short one that will last no more than five days."

Taking a less sanguine view was Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf III, the U.S. field commander in the gulf, who cautioned that fighting could last for up to six months.

President Bush, who has stressed that Kuwait will not become another Vietnam, said he hoped "it would be over in a few days, but what happens realistically is hard to tell."

What is certain is that the war would start with savage air strikes against missile sites and airfields in hopes of preventing counterattacks against Saudi Arabia or Israel, followed by a blanket bombardment of supply and communications lines to isolate Iraq's troops in Kuwait.

Kuwait is 500 miles from supply bases in Baghdad, said retired Adm. Thomas Moorer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, "and there is no Ho Chi Minh trail in Iraq, nowhere for trucks to hide."

Without a dependable supply line, Iraqi forces in Kuwait, also under heavy air assault, would "deteriorate rapidly," Moorer said.

Retired Army Col. Harry Summers, an analyst with the Army War College, said this first phase, which might last a week or two, would be "very violent and very costly." Iraq's air defenses are formidable, Summers said, and "we're going to see American pilots paraded down the streets of Baghdad."

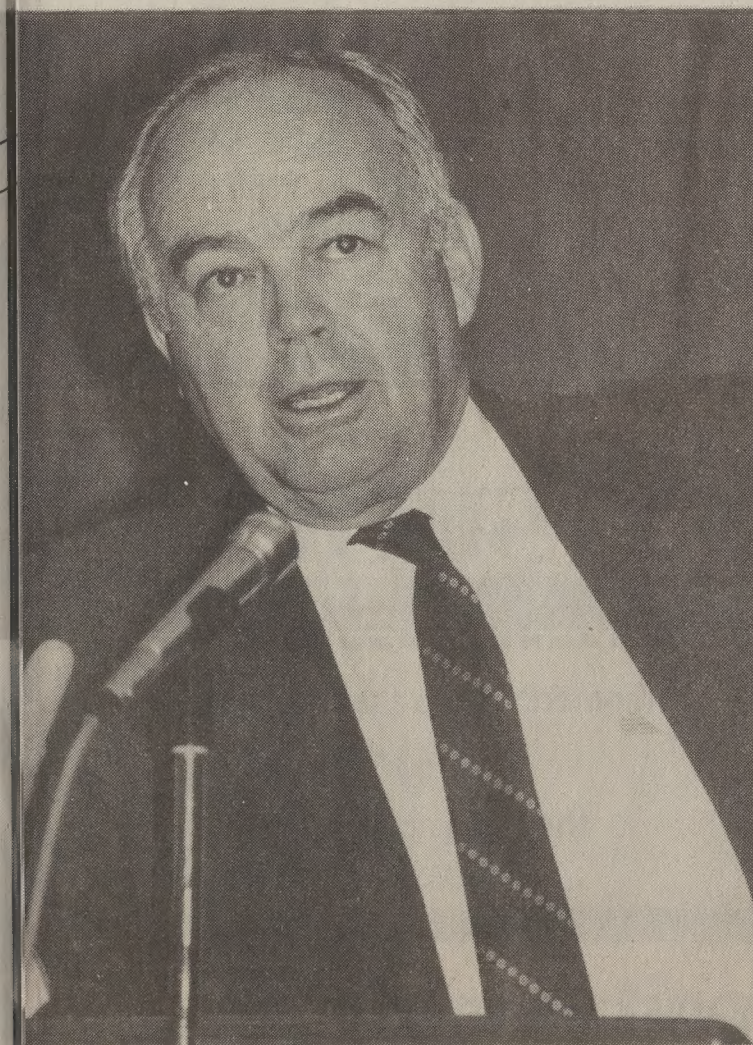

The House Armed Services Committee chairman, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., quoted military officials as saying 70 to 80 American and allied planes would be shot down in just the initial stage of attacks against targets inside Iraq.

It is possible that Saddam would call it quits there, recognizing his forces are helpless before America's deadly air power.

Far more likely, however, is that U.S.-led ground forces would have to move against the 540,000 deeply entrenched Iraqi troops in Kuwait and southern Iraq. Here is where the real carnage begins.

Aspin predicted that the Americans would suffer about 1,000 deaths in a short campaign, although other experts put the death toll far higher than that.

Abortion bill threatened with veto

Bangerter speaks to students at a meeting last year. Monday he will give his State of the State address to the Utah Legislature.

By TRENTON K. RICKS
Universe Staff Writer

During his annual State of the State Address Monday night, Gov. Norm Bangerter publicly threatened the state legislature with a veto for the first time during his administration. The threat referred to any abortion bill the legislature might pass that does not follow specific guidelines.

"I must now tell you that if you pass any bill that does not meet these criteria for exceptions and requires us to advance an indefensible legal position, I will veto it," Bangerter said.

The governor's list of exemptions is almost a carbon copy of those listed by the legislature's Abortion Task Force. The governor's few differences, however, might cause substantial controversy in the next 45 days.

While the bills filed in the legislature offer an exemption for rape and incest only if the crime is reported to authorities within five days, the governor's rape/incest exemption said nothing about a reporting period. The governor also asked for an exemption if the pregnancy threatens the life or health of the mother, while the legislative bills emphasize only the mother's life.

Bangerter's other worry about an abortion bill is the heavy legal costs of a law that would have to be defended in a long series of legal battles.

"We must not waste our time or resources on dramatic gestures that have no real chance of success," he said. "If we pass a bill that is ruled unconstitutional we have not saved the life of one child."

One program he introduced in the speech would help provide a risk pool

Court rejects right to bear machine guns

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Monday rejected claims that the ownership of machine guns is protected by the constitutional right to bear arms.

The court, without comment, left intact a federal appeals court ruling that upheld a 1986 law which barred the possession or sale of machine guns not lawfully owned before that date.

Barbara Lautman, of the Center to Prevent Handgun Violence, celebrated the decision, saying it shatters the National Rifle Association's "myth that the Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms guarantees an unlimited right to own guns. We really do believe this is the worst legal defeat ever for the NRA."

Stephen Halbrook, one of the lawyers representing Georgia gun collector J.D. Farmer Jr. who had challenged the machine-gun law, disagreed. "I don't think this case is a substantial blow to the NRA," he said.

Richard Gardiner, director of state and local affairs for the NRA, said "We're not used to setbacks, so calling this the 'worst' is only a relative term. Obviously, it would have been nice for the Supreme Court to take the case and resolve the Second Amendment issue."

Halbrook argued that the appeals court wrongly interpreted the 1986 federal law and protested that the panel had upheld "the first ban on firearms possession by law-abiding citizens in American history."

Florida prison escapee found in Holladay

HOLLADAY — Reactions ranged from shock to disbelief when neighbors learned of the arrest of a man said to be an escaped killer from Florida who had been living with in-laws here.

Willie Norris Griffith, 34, was arrested Friday at his father-in-law's home. Florida state law enforcement spokesman Tal Whiddon said Griffith had lived in Utah for a number of years under an assumed name and was on Florida's 10 Most Wanted list.

Griffith was arrested in 1975 after an Orlando, Fla., cabdriver was killed in an attempted robbery. He was serving a 25-year-to-life sentence for first-degree murder when he and two other inmates gained access to the switches of the prison's perimeter lights, scaled a fence, and escaped in the dark.

Griffith and his wife moved with their two children to the in-laws' home about a month ago.

He may have been working in the Salt Lake area selling water softeners since leaving Price.

Bodyguard assassinates 2 top PLO aides

NICOSIA, Cyprus — A renegade bodyguard assassinated PLO leader Yasser Arafat's two top aides and a security officer Monday night, then took hostage the family of one of the victims, a senior Palestinian commander said.

The gunman was demanding a plane to fly him out of Tunis after killing Salah Khalaf, Arafat's second-in-command; Hayel Abdel-Hamid, the PLO's security chief; and Abu Mohammed Al-Omari, Khalaf's bodyguard, several sources reached in Tunis by telephone said.

The senior Palestinian official said Abdel-Hamid's wife and teenage daughter were being held by the gunman, whom he identified only as "Hamza," inside their house in the Tunis suburb of Marsa where the shooting occurred.

The house was surrounded by Tunisian security forces and Palestinian guerrillas five hours after the shootings occurred at 11 p.m., the commander said.

The death of Khalaf left Arafat as the only survivor among the three original founders of Fatah, the original PLO group and its largest faction.

The other founder, Khalil al-Wazir, was assassinated by commandos on April 16, 1988, also in Tunisia.

France offers last-minute peace proposal

France offered a last-minute proposal Monday to avert war in the gulf, but the United States appeared to reject the plan because it called for talks on the Palestinian question in exchange for Iraq's pullout from Kuwait.

With Iraq and the United States seemingly locked on a course for war heading into the Tuesday midnight U.N. deadline, last-ditch peace efforts were multiplying.

In addition to the French plan to be presented to the U.N. Security Council Monday night, Yemen and the Palestine Liberation Organization were floating proposals.

Iraq's U.N. Ambassador, Abdul Amir al-Anbari, said French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas would go to Baghdad, presumably to discuss the proposal.

France's six-point plan calls for U.N. peacekeeping forces to replace the multinational force currently in the Persian Gulf, and non-aggression guarantees for Iraq, once it pulls its troops from Kuwait.

Actor's knighthood upsets British gays

LONDON — Britain's homosexual community is divided over the decision by gay actor Ian McKellen to accept a knighthood from a government many gays regard as hostile to them.

McKellen's name is on a list of people chosen by the former Thatcher government to be honored in the queen's name.

Former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher introduced Clause 28 to the Local Government Act, thereby banning the promotion of homosexuality in schools and cutting local government spending on gay programs.

The British government, now led by John Major, plans to amend the Criminal Justice Bill and give judges new powers to imprison gay males for acts of "indecentcy between men," including public displays of affection and homosexual prostitution.

David Bridle, editor of the gay magazine Pink Paper, said McKellen's decision was a "sell-out" to a government that was trying "to silence the most famous voice in gay rights."

Robert Millet named dean of BYU's religion department

By CATHY CARMODE
Assistant Campus Editor

Robert L. Millet has been named the new dean of Religious Education. The appointment was announced Wednesday in a meeting for religion faculty and administration.

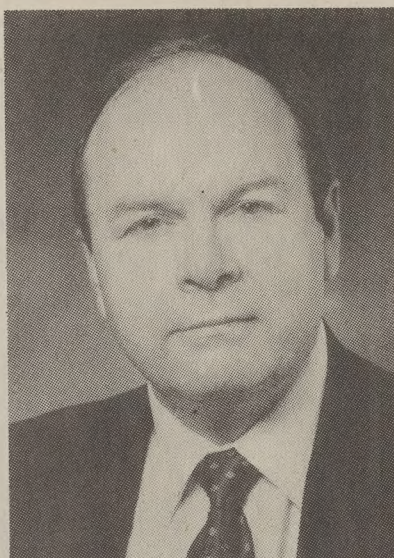

Other administrative changes include the appointments of Donald Q. Cannon and Larry E. Dahl as associate deans, Leon R. Hartshorn as chair of the Department of Church History and Doctrine and Stephen E. Robinson as chair of the Department of Ancient Scripture.

Millet replaces Robert J. Matthews as dean. Cannon has been acting dean since last January when Matthews was released to work as senior editor for the Encyclopedia of Mormonism. At that time, "the search was begun for the new dean," Cannon said.

Monte Nyman was the former associate dean who assisted Cannon while he was acting dean.

On hand for the announcements Wednesday were Elder Boyd K. Packer, Elder Neal A. Maxwell and Elder Dallin H. Oaks, members of the Board of Trustees the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The three trustee board members spoke to the new administrators about their responsibilities and the importance of religious education on campus, Cannon said.

"Their presence underscored the importance of religious education. One of our big concerns is to promote harmony with the rest of the university and to promote the role of faculty in teaching for us," Cannon said.

"We are also going to be involved with the completion of the new religion building. That's very exciting for us."

Dahl said one of his goals is to see "the role of religious education on campus become more of a topic that's better understood across campus."

he feels it is a gimmick of cosmetic companies. "No scientific studies that I know of have been done to prove it's worth anything," he said.

Chaffetz said placental material is an ingredient used by many cosmetic companies, but few of them will list the ingredients on the product.

According to a letter from the FDA, "Cosmetics not customarily distributed for retail sale are exempt from FDA requirements for ingredient labeling."

"We feel that listing our ingredients is a selling point. That is drastically different from the major firms in this business. We know that our ingredients, all of them, are a selling point," Chaffetz said.

Several cosmetics companies denied the use of placental material in their products. According to the Consumer Requests Department of Estee Lauder, human placental extract is not used in their cosmetics.

Sheilagh Thornock, sales director for Mary Kay Cosmetics, said her company does not use placental material and never has. "We do not because at this point, it's not kosher in the industry."

Customers often call the customer service department of Nu Skin with questions concerning this ingredient. "We generally don't have too many problems with it once we explain to them what it is, why it is used and how it is obtained," Chaffetz said.

Hospitals in Orem, American Fork, Payson and Salt Lake City provide placenta to By-Prod Corp. Barbara Baxter, an Orem representative of By-Prod, said her company does not use placenta in cosmetics or permanent but uses it to make several items used for medicinal purposes.

Utah Valley Regional Medical Center has a contract to supply 3,000 placentas per year to By-Prod, said Aton Garrity of the public relations department at the medical center.

Tennis team signs up 2 Italian recruits

By Jody Nielsen
 Universe Sports Writer

After two weeks of uncertainty, Federica Lentini and Sarah Mugnaini have landed at BYU.

The two tennis players from Italy were originally to play for United States International University in San Diego, Calif. Lentini and Mugnaini arrived to find that the majority of USIU's sports programs had been cut, including tennis.

BYU coach Ann Valentine was notified by USIU's coach, and because of injuries on the BYU team she was very interested in signing the two girls.

The BYU women's tennis team is ranked 18th in the nation, and according to Valentine "this ranking will most definitely improve with the addition of these two young ladies."

Both Lentini and Mugnaini said they came to America because "here it is possible to study at a university and play tennis at the same time."

Lentini is 21 years old and from Rome. She attended Rome University for a year after high school and studied Italian Literature.

Sarah Mugnaini is 19 years old and comes to BYU from Florence, Italy. She studied language at Florence University for a year before coming to America.

"We like it here, it's great," said Mugnaini, "Americans are really friendly."

Gorbachev expressed no sorrow or regret over the loss of life, except to say it was "a tragic development" that the Kremlin did not want.

He told the Supreme Soviet legislature in Moscow that it was "a defensive action."

"The manner of defense was decided by the commandant," Gor-
in the session.

"He reported to a deputy commander of the military district. ... I learned only in the morning, the early morning, when they got me up. When it happened, no one knew," Gorbachev said.

Soviet Interior Minister Boris Pugo, whose troops participated in Sunday's attack, told parliament: "No one from the center gave an order" to use force.

Gorbachev said Lithuanian "workers and intellectuals" complaining of anti-Soviet broadcasts had tried to talk to the republic's parliament but were refused and allegedly beaten.
Then, he said, they asked the military commander in Vilnius to "give us protection."

Pugo also said the committee had asked Soviet military officials in Vilnius to defend its members massed outside the television tower.

Witnesses, including an Associated Press reporter, said several hundred Lithuanian nationalists had also gathered at the tower, hoping to prevent a takeover.

Troops moved on the site early Sunday, opening fire with automatic weapons, beating the protesters and crushing some under armored vehicles.

Gorbachev, Pugo and Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov were asked either by legislators or reporters in the Kremlin about the National Salvation Committee, which was formed only on Friday.

They said they did not know who its members were or who it represented.

for those who cannot purchase ordinary health insurance. "I have recommended $3 million in one-time funds to begin this program," he said. "With a similar investment in the next two or three years this program can become self-funding."

The governor also renewed his request for a Department of Environmental Quality, hoping that after a year of study, the legislature would be ready to help open the new department. "The public demands that we give this issue the attention it deserves, and the future depends on it," he added.

Throughout Bangerter's address, he referred to the continued economic growth the state is experiencing — in spite of the current national recession. In response to the address, legislative leaders of both parties appeared to be generally supportive.

Rep. Frank Pignatelli, a Democrat, said his party was pleased to see the governor address the problem of Utah's uninsurables but wanted Bangerter to offer a plan to ensure that Utah weathers the recession. He said the address also lacked a proposed structure to involve parents in the education of their children.

Although Bangerter did not address it, leaders from both parties suggested Utah's income tax system could be overhauled in this session.
The Democrats have proposed expanding the lower tax brackets, while the Republicans have talked about a flat tax.

Army dad seeks new assignment

By CHARLIE GIDDLEY
Universe Staff Writer

The fate of five Murray children rests with the United States Army after their mother was killed in an auto accident last week.

The children's father, Chief Warrent Officer Leland Fenn, stationed in Mainz, Germany, is seeking a "compassionate reassignment" in order to take care of his family.

According to the Utah Highway Patrol, Gloria O. Fenn, 35, from Murray, died Tuesday at University Hospital in Salt Lake City.

She was killed after her car collided with a pickup truck at the intersection of 4100 South and 1950 West, in Salt Lake City.

"I feel I will have a really strong chance of getting (the compassionate reassignment)," Fenn said.

The new assignment would allow him to move his family to Fort Lewis, Wash., near Tacoma.

There, he would have the help of his ex-wife's parents in raising the children, he said.

No matter what happens, however, Fenn said he plans to keep the children with him.

"If they won't give me the reassignment, then we're packing up and going back to Germany," he said.

If for some reason the Army does not allow Fenn to take his children back he said, "I would get out of the Army."

That's too much trauma for the kids," Fenn said.

Before he left Germany, Fenn's former bishop told him the Air Force does not grant compassionate reassignments in such situations.

But Fenn said he has an Army friend at Fort Rucker, Ala., who received a reassignment when the friend's wife left their children.

Major James Rupper, an Army legal officer, said, "Traditionally, the chances for a compassionate reassignment would be good in this case."

However, one would have to reassess the possibility right now in light of Operation Desert Shield."

Rupper said taking the children to Germany is feasible but not wise — again because of Desert Shield and because of chances of having to leave the children.

Whether or not Fenn takes his children back to Germany or gets the compassionate reassignment, he said he will have agood support structure.

He said his bishop, ward members, as well as other close friends in Germany are willing to help with the children.

In Washington, he has his ex-wife's parents and other relatives to help, he said.

According to Gloria Fenn's bishop, Robert Attridge, she and her ex-husband were on very friendly terms.

The children are doing as well as could be expected, Fenn said.

Gloria Fenn recently made out a will, said Betty Attridge, the bishop's wife. She also wrote a short personal history in March, she said.

"It was nice for the kids that she had taken time out to write about her life," Fenn said.

Soviet students visit Utah Valley

By JENNIFER DERMODY
Universe Staff Writer

Ten students and two professors from the Soviet Union will speak today at noon in the ballroom of Utah Valley Community College.

The students and teachers will discuss their impressions of the United States and their views on the current situation in the Soviet Union.

Eberhard Lehnardt, Russian language professor at UVCC, said the group has come to the United States as part of a student exchange program.

Between July 24 and August 24, 1990, 10 students and two professors from UVCC toured the Soviet Union, Lehnardt said.

The UVCC group went to the Soviet Union and stayed with the families of Soviet students.

Those same Soviet students came to Utah and are staying at the UVCC students' homes, Lehnardt said.

"To my knowledge, UVCC is the first educational institution in the state to sponsor a large student exchange with the Soviet Union," Lehnardt said.

The exchange is also a first for Utah and the Soviet Union.

Malan Jackson, director of the Center for International Studies at UVCC, said, "The study abroad program was established as part of an ongoing effort by UVCC officials to establish educationally productive ties with the Soviets."

Jackson said the Soviet students have studied computer courses and English at UVCC since arriving in Utah.

The Soviets returned to UVCC from a tour through Utah, Nevada and California, including stops in Las Vegas, San Diego, Disneyland and Universal Studios, Jackson said.

Jackson said the Soviets were very impressed with the friendliness of the American people.

These students have been on several trips around the world, but Jackson said, "They said the exchange in Utah has been the best they've ever had."
